According to one article: Original applications for OCD include checking and repeating, which are a type of Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder (OCD). This has occurred in the workplace, as well as in non-work environments. Checking is also a type of OCD that is very similar to Hoarding. While he may be susceptible to obsessive-compulsive disorder, OCD is a known factor in several viral infections such as mumps, chickenpox, and the flu. The OMSI Neuroimmunology Laboratory are interested in this topic, so they are looking for samples from people who may be susceptible to OCD or other viral infections. 43 Ill.2d 35 (1969) 250 N.E.2d 553 JOSEPH R. VANDERWEY, Appellant, v. JOHN M. CREAN et al.,

Appellees. No. 41892. Supreme Court of Illinois. Opinion filed April 23, 1969. *36 JACOB A. ROBERTS, of Chicago, for appellant. SAMUEL W. WALMAN, ALBERT H. BARR, and HOWARD G. KING, JR., of ALDEN & KING, of Chicago, for appellees. Reversed and remanded. Mr. CHIEF JUSTICE UNDERWOOD delivered the opinion of the court: Plaintiff, a trustee in bankruptcy, filed a motion in the Circuit Court of Cook County alleging the breach by the defendants in violation of a written lease agreement by the willful, negligent or reckless storage of bulk oil at plaintiff's storage terminal on Chicago's northern lakefront. He also alleged liability for theft of oil held under storage at the terminal, and sought $500 damages for loss of use of bulk oil. The trial court entered summary judgment for defendants, and plaintiff brought this appeal. Plaintiff's second amended complaint alleged breach of two provisions of the lease, which provisions are quoted in the margin. A copy of an escrow agreement between the parties was attached to the complaint. Both lease provisions, though not phrased in the same terms, required defendant to protect the premises from

What's new in Crazy Ball Racing™:

Review: It Does What It Claims Funk of Titans, the fifth instalment of a trend-setting five-years old Korean project, is a stand-up comedy show about Korea, more precisely, about the Korean people. Like the previous four editions of Funk of Titans, this one, too, is packed with sight gags about the country and its people. No doubt, this is what the creators had in mind when they created the show. To be fair, this isn't like other stand-up shows where comedians generally take a negative or jocular view of the society around them. The writers behind Fun of Titans want to act as if they're not part of that society. They take pains to distance themselves from whatever society is supposed to be. They don't respect the society's ideals and they don't even like the society. They're not there to make fun of it, they're there to make fun of them. In the first five episodes, the show takes on the society's hierarchy, religion, social mores and politics. The show aims to take the 'fun' out of the very concept of power. If you get it, you'll discover the series is the most subversive comedy you'll ever see. Episodes 1 – 4 The series kicks off with Peter (writer) and Paul (director and cinematographer) who travel to Hawaii to meet comedian Eric Wareheim. Eric's appearance signifies more than a mere development, it simply means that now the show has a new director. This new personality makes a difference to the show's style and presentation. The opening sequence still features a black screen but the black turns clear when a bunch of Korean men in suits break in. The sequences that follow are similarly unique in that the Korean men are accompanied by non-Korean counterparts. Both the Koreans and the non-Koreans come in the same pose, same attire, same hairstyle or style of eyewear (nose/eye glasses/hat) as those in the original scene. Why would a Korean man who'd been in a meeting with senators and held high level security clearances be wearing a Hawaiian shirt? Because he felt like it, that's why. The casting of the non-Korean characters goes beyond the mere exchange of clothes. The scenes are sometimes quite bizarre

I have designed Destiny's Divide to both be a good game and also a game to focus on socialization and community. Some games are about winning and with this one, you can forget about winning if you fail to have fun. I have worked hard to give you a game that is worth your time in a way that you have not experienced before, and I hope you will find it fun and well balanced. I have put all the resources I have into making this game. I would like to thank the community for their support, I hope you all enjoy playing and playing along and helping to build a strong and long lasting community in the Destiny's Divide universe. A: In addition to the excellent points made by @EDPerry, I'd like to add that there will be a crafting currency that will be introduced during the ranked season. While I suspect it will be another form of energy, I have no clue what it will be. Hopefully it will be something common and fair like XP or a skill value. Q: Dynamically change the width of a column in a matrix depending on the row's content in Python I have a matrix with the following shape: [3, 6] Where the first number (3) is the number of rows and the second (6) is the number of columns. I would like to dynamically change the width of the second column depending on the values in the row. I made this example, it's not the real world application but it's enough for me to explain what I'd like to do: import numpy as np l1 = np.array([[1, 1, 2, 1, 0, 1, 1, 0, 1, 1], [1, 0, 1, 1, 0, 1, 1, 0, 1, 0], [1, 1, 1, 1, 0, 1, 1, 0, 1, 0], [1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1], [0, 0, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1, 1]]) l
